The Lone Writer's Writing Club Volume One Pocket Edition: a workbook for writers who wish they had a writing group Bar Scott

This is a writing workbook/handbook/storybook for writers (or anyone, really) who wishes they had a group of writing friends to motivate them. The book is filled with prompts that the lone writer will respond to, followed by the responses of 2, 3, or 4 other writers. Reading other writers' pieces gives the lone writer an opportunity to see what others do with prompts. It also gives them a sense of community and the all-important reminder that their own story is worth telling. This workbook is meant to inspire more writing. In that way, it's good for writers who are just starting out, writers who write professionally, writers who are moving from non-fiction to fiction or the other way around. It's also great for anyone who's interested in knowing themselves a little better. The prompts are both serious and fun. They can lead to memories that will be interesting and provocative for those of us who long to know ourselves better. Perfect for writing groups who need an absentia leader as well. And there are plenty of blank pages to write on. There are two versions of this volume: a 6" x 9" for taking on the road (or hiding if necessary), and a larger version that's 8.5" x 11" for those who like a lot of space to write in. We hope you enjoy it, and we also hope you get a lot of writing out of it. Thank you!
